

The Ohio Statesman

MARYPENNY & MILLER, Publishers.
GEO. W. MARYPENNY, Editor.
COLUMBUS, OHIO.
EVENING EDITION, AUGUST 9, 1861.

The Ohio Statesman Newspaper FOR SALE.

W. H. BAIN & SON will sell to a newspaper man the Ohio Statesman, a weekly paper, the Ohio Statesman, the Telegraph, and the Telegraph and the Standard, all of which are published in the same office, and the circulation of each is about 10,000 copies daily. The paper is well printed, and is well edited, and the circulation is steadily increasing.
The paper is well known throughout the State, and is well liked by the public. The paper is well printed, and is well edited, and the circulation is steadily increasing.
The paper is well known throughout the State, and
is well liked by the public. The paper is well printed, and is well edited, and the circulation is steadily increasing.

MARYPENNY & MILLER,
Pub. Ohio Statesman
AUG. 1, 1861.

12 Democratic Union Nominations.

FOR GOVERNOR.
Hugh J. Jewett,
of Muskingum.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.

John Scott Harrison,
of Hamilton.

SECRETARY OF STATE.
WILLIAM W. ARMSTRONG,
of Seneca.

TREASURER OF STATE.
GEORGE W. HOLMES,
of Hamilton.

COMPTROLLER.
WAYNE GRISWOLD,
of Pickaway.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS.
JAMES W. KELLOGG,
of Cuyahoga.

NORTHERN DISSENTERS AND SOUTHERN
SECESSIONISTS.

The Baltimore Patriot, which is classed by Administration journals among the Union papers of the South, speaking of the Republican leaders, says, "they have denounced as treason and treasonable the acts of the Convention in any other way than by force of arms, and it may be discovered, that after all their cries to the contrary, they have been working for a dissolution of the Union."

There are stubborn facts that seem to give to the statement in the latter clause of the above quotation the force of demonstration.

Whether the Republican leaders and agitators desire it or not (and that some of them do not desire it at all), the sentiment of the people, and brave and ready volunteers between the blunders and failures of officials in the South, and the policy they favor tend to render the maintenance of the Union impossible.

They speak, as the Patriot intimates, all at tempe to settling our difficulties by negotiation and compromise. Heretofore, all our great national disputes have been settled in that way, and we have seen from dismemberment—

But the Republicans say that these settlements have always been to the advantage of the South.

And so they have the power in the North, they are determined never again to knuckle to the South. They will sooner let the Union slide.

Presently this is the position of the Secession ists at the South. They study over that is the adjustment of all our differences from the formation of the Constitution downward, the best and the best of the bargains. Rather than submit longer to Northern dictation and control, they declare they prefer to forego the advantages of the Union, and
to form a separate Confederacy.

These people at the North, who cannot see why the South should take this ground, and those people at the South just as wise, vir-tuous, and intelligent, who cannot see why any body in the North should complain of Southern anomalous.

The question as to which section had the more reason to complain, very hot on an intelligent and impartial judgment, thoroughly so-cinating with our past political history, his decades, we are satisfied, would be, that the benefits of the Union have been as equally distributed to both North and South, and the national anomalous equaled, as a general thing, upon equal and equitable terms, as the circumstances of the case, and the infinitude of human nature would permit. His sound presence-ence, as distinguished from foreign statesmen actually doing the work of a wretched and a wretched world.

Democratic Dissidents now fear the South will always be at the South.

South, they have the power in the North, they
are determined never again to knuckle to the South. They will sooner let the Union slide.

Presently this is the position of the Secession
ists at the South. They study over that is
the adjustment of all our differences from the
formation of the Constitution downward, the
best and the best of the bar-
gains. Rather than submit longer to Northern
dictation and control, they declare they prefer
to forego the advantages of the Union, and
to form a separate Confederacy.

These people at the North, who cannot see
why the South should take this ground, and
those people at the South just as wise, vir-
tuous, and intelligent, who cannot see why any
body in the North should complain of Southern
anomalous.

The question as to which section had the
more reason to complain, very hot on an intelligent and impartial judgment, thoroughly so-
cinating with our past political history, his decades, we are satisfied, would be, that the benefits of the Union have been as equally distributed to both North and South, and the national
anomalous equaled, as a general thing, upon
equal and equitable terms, as the circumstances of the case, and the infinitude of human nature would permit. His sound presence-
ence, as distinguished from foreign statesmen actually doing the work of a wretched and a wretched world.

Democratic Dissidents now fear the South

will always be at the South.

South, they have the power in the North, they
are determined never again to knuckle to the South. They will sooner let the Union slide.

Presently this is the position of the Secession
ists at the South. They study over that is
the adjustment of all our differences from the
formation of the Constitution downward, the
best and the best of the bar-
gains. Rather than submit longer to Northern
dictation and control, they declare they prefer
to forego the advantages of the Union, and
to form a separate Confederacy.

These people at the North, who cannot see
why the South should take this ground, and
those people at the South just as wise, vir-
tuous, and intelligent, who cannot see why any
body in the North should complain of Southern
anomalous.

The question as to which section had the
more reason to complain, very hot on an intelligent and impartial judgment, thoroughly so-
cinating with our past political history, his decades, we are satisfied, would be, that the benefits of the Union have been as equally distributed to both North and South, and the national
anomalous equaled, as a general thing, upon
equal and equitable terms, as the circumstances of the case, and the infinitude of human nature would permit. His sound presence-
ence, as distinguished from foreign statesmen actually doing the work of a wretched and a wretched world.

Democratic Dissidents now fear the South

will always be at the South.

South, they have the power in the North, they
are determined never again to knuckle to the South. They will sooner let the Union slide.

Presently this is the position of the Secession
ists at the South. They study over that is
the adjustment of all our differences from the
formation of the Constitution downward, the
best and the best of the bar-
gains. Rather than submit longer to Northern
dictation and control, they declare they prefer
to forego the advantages of the Union, and
to form a separate Confederacy.

These people at the North, who cannot see
why the South should take this ground, and
those people at the South just as wise, vir-
tuous, and intelligent, who cannot see why any
body in the North should complain of Southern
anomalous.

The question as to which section had the
more reason to complain, very hot on an intelligent and impartial judgment, thoroughly so-
cinating with our past political history, his decades, we are satisfied, would be, that the benefits of the Union have been as equally distributed to both North and South, and the national
anomalous equaled, as a general thing, upon
equal and equitable terms, as the circumstances of the case, and the infinitude of human nature would permit. His sound presence-
ence, as distinguished from foreign statesmen actually doing the work of a wretched and a wretched world.

Democratic Dissidents now fear the South

will always be at the South.

South, they have the power in the North, they
are determined never again to knuckle to the South. They will sooner let the Union slide.

Presently this is the position of the Secession
ists at the South. They study over that is
the adjustment of all our differences from the
formation of the Constitution downward, the
best and the best of the bar-
gains. Rather than submit longer to Northern
dictation and control, they declare they prefer
to forego the advantages of the Union, and
to form a separate Confederacy.

These people at the North, who cannot see
why the South should take this ground, and
those people at the South just as wise, vir-
tuous, and intelligent, who cannot see why any
body in the North should complain of Southern
anomalous.

The question as to which section had the
more reason to complain, very hot on an intelligent and impartial judgment, thoroughly so-
cinating with our past political history, his decades, we are satisfied, would be, that the benefits of the Union have been as equally distributed to both North and South, and the national
anomalous equaled, as a general thing, upon
equal and equitable terms, as the circumstances of the case, and the infinitude of human nature would permit. His sound presence-
ence, as distinguished from foreign statesmen actually doing the work of a wretched and a wretched world.

Democratic Dissidents now fear the South

will always be at the South.

South, they have the power in the North, they
are determined never again to knuckle to the South. They will sooner let the Union slide.

Presently this is the position of the Secession
ists at the South. They study over that is
the adjustment of all our differences from the
formation of the Constitution downward, the
best and the best of the bar-
gains. Rather than submit longer to Northern
dictation and control, they declare they prefer
to forego the advantages of the Union, and
to form a separate Confederacy.

These people at the North, who cannot see
why the South should take this ground, and
those people at the South just as wise, vir-
tuous, and intelligent, who cannot see why any
body in the North should complain of Southern
anomalous.

The question as to which section had the
more reason to complain, very hot on an intelligent and impartial judgment, thoroughly so-
cinating with our past political history, his decades, we are satisfied, would be, that the benefits of the Union have been as equally distributed to both North and South, and the national
anomalous equaled, as a general thing, upon
equal and equitable terms, as the circumstances of the case, and the infinitude of human nature would permit. His sound presence-
ence, as distinguished from foreign statesmen actually doing the work of a wretched and a wretched world.

Democratic Dissidents now fear the South

will always be at the South.

South, they have the power in the North, they
are determined never again to knuckle to the South. They will sooner let the Union slide.

Presently this is the position of the Secession
ists at the South. They study over that is
the adjustment of all our differences from the
formation of the Constitution downward, the
best and the best of the bar-
gains. Rather than submit longer to Northern
dictation and control, they declare they prefer
to forego the advantages of the Union, and
to form a separate Confederacy.

These people at the North, who cannot see
why the South should take this ground, and
those people at the South just as wise, vir-
tuous, and intelligent, who cannot see why any
body in the North should complain of Southern
anomalous.

The question as to which section had the
more reason to complain, very hot on an intelligent and impartial judgment, thoroughly so-
cinating with our past political history, his decades, we are satisfied, would be, that the benefits of the Union have been as equally distributed to both North and South, and the national
anomalous equaled, as a general thing, upon
equal and equitable terms, as the circumstances of the case, and the infinitude of human nature would permit. His sound presence-
ence, as distinguished from foreign statesmen actually doing the work of a wretched and a wretched world.

Democratic Dissidents now fear the South

will always be at the South.

South, they have the power in the North, they
are determined never again to knuckle to the South. They will sooner let the Union slide.

Presently this is the position of the Secession
ists at the South. They study over that is
the adjustment of all our differences from the
formation of the Constitution downward, the
best and the best of the bar-
gains. Rather than submit longer to Northern
dictation and control, they declare they prefer
to forego the advantages of the Union, and
to form a separate Confederacy.

These people at the North, who cannot see
why the South should take this ground, and
those people at the South just as wise, vir-
tuous, and intelligent, who cannot see why any
body in the North should complain of Southern
anomalous.

The question as to which section had the
more reason to complain, very hot on an intelligent and impartial judgment, thoroughly so-
cinating with our past political history, his decades, we are satisfied, would be, that the benefits of the Union have been as equally distributed to both North and South, and the national
anomalous equaled, as a general thing, upon
equal and equitable terms, as the circumstances of the case, and the infinitude of human nature would permit. His sound presence-
ence, as distinguished from foreign statesmen actually doing the work of a wretched and a wretched world.

Democratic Dissidents now fear the South

will always be at the South.

South, they have the power in the North, they
are determined never again to knuckle to the South. They will sooner let the Union slide.

Presently this is the position of the Secession
ists at the South. They study over that is
the adjustment of all our differences from the
formation of the Constitution downward, the
best and the best of the bar-
gains. Rather than submit longer to Northern
dictation and control, they declare they prefer
to forego the advantages of the Union, and
to form a separate Confederacy.

These people at the North, who cannot see
why the South should take this ground, and
those people at the South just as wise, vir-
tuous, and intelligent, who cannot see why any
body in the North should complain of Southern
anomalous.

The question as to which section had the
more reason to complain, very hot on an intelligent and impartial judgment, thoroughly so-
cinating with our past political history, his decades, we are satisfied, would be, that the benefits of the Union have been as equally distributed to both North and South, and the national
anomalous equaled, as a general thing, upon
equal and equitable terms, as the circumstances of the case, and the infinitude of human nature would permit. His sound presence-
ence, as distinguished from foreign statesmen actually doing the work of a wretched and a wretched world.

Democratic Dissidents now fear the South

will always be at the South.

South, they have the power in the North, they
are determined never again to knuckle to the South. They will sooner let the Union slide.

Presently this is the position of the Secession
ists at the South. They study over that is
the adjustment of all our differences from the
formation of the Constitution downward, the
best and the best of the bar-
gains. Rather than submit longer to Northern
dictation and control, they declare they prefer
to forego the advantages of the Union, and
to form a separate Confederacy.

These people at the North, who cannot see
why the South should take this ground, and
those people at the South just as wise, vir-
tuous, and intelligent, who cannot see why any
body in the North should complain of Southern
anomalous.

The question as to which section had the
more reason to complain, very hot on an intelligent and impartial judgment, thoroughly so-
cinating with our past political history, his decades, we are satisfied, would be, that the benefits of the Union have been as equally distributed to both North and South, and the national
anomalous equaled, as a general thing, upon
equal and equitable terms, as the circumstances of the case, and the infinitude of human nature would permit. His sound presence-
ence, as distinguished from foreign statesmen actually doing the work of a wretched and a wretched world.

Democratic Dissidents now fear the South

will always be at the South.

South, they have the power in the North, they
are determined never again to knuckle to the South. They will sooner let the Union slide.

Presently this is the position of the Secession
ists at the South. They study over that is
the adjustment of all our differences from the
formation of the Constitution downward, the
best and the best of the bar-
gains. Rather than submit longer to Northern
dictation and control, they declare they prefer
to forego the advantages of the Union, and
to form a separate Confederacy.

These people at the North, who cannot see
why the South should take this ground, and
those people at the South just as wise, vir-
tuous, and intelligent, who cannot see why any
body in the North should complain of Southern
anomalous.

The question as to which section had the
more reason to complain, very hot on an intelligent and impartial judgment, thoroughly so-
cinating with our past political history, his decades, we are satisfied, would be, that the benefits of the Union have been as equally distributed to both North and South, and the national
anomalous equaled, as a general thing, upon
equal and equitable terms, as the circumstances of the case, and the infinitude of human nature would permit. His sound presence-
ence, as distinguished from foreign statesmen actually doing the work of a wretched and a wretched world.

Democratic Dissidents now fear the South

will always be at the South.

South, they have the power in the North, they
are determined never again to knuckle to the South. They will sooner let the Union slide.